MORE ABOUT THE OPIUM.

THE ELEU UNDER ORDERS OF SHERIFF WILCOX.

A San Francisco Paper Carries a Local Customs Official With Complacency in the Deal.

The tug Eleu has not been reported at present writing and there are good reasons why she may not be for several days to come. The BULLETIN is in receipt of some private information from Kauai concerning the strange schooner and her mission, from which it would appear that the vessel has been and gone. Whether the opium she left on that island is ever discovered or not depends on the vigilance of Sheriff Wilcox, and the BULLETIN's information is to the effect that the tug Eleu did not go out on a go-as-you-please trip this time, but went direct to Lihue, where she was placed at the disposal and is now under the orders of Sheriff Wilcox. Her future movements will depend entirely on the orders of that official. There is no longer any doubt that the information published exclusively in the BULLETIN about the vessel and her cargo is strictly correct, and if any further data be needed to prove it, the additional information is given that the name of the Henrietta's captain is Anderson, or rather it was when he left Vancouver. He will likely bear another name on these islands, and the BULLETIN's Kauai correspondent has included it in his other information.

The following dispatch from Victoria, B. C., under date of November 30, appears in the San Francisco Chronicle:
The Federal authorities of Southern California need not waste their energy watching the Santa Barbara channel for the advent of the schooner Henrietta, as they will only have their labor for their pains. That famous but very sluggish schooner is at present making the best of time possible toward the Hawaiian islands, and the mystery which surrounded her departure from British Columbia has been cleared up by her mission leaking out.

About eighteen months ago 2300 pounds of opium, the greater portion of which was of San Francisco manufacture, was shipped to Honolulu by Joselyn, the notorious smuggler of this city. The opium was cached outside Honolulu harbor by the schooner which took it down. One stormy night "Jim" Harvey and his partner "Bill," who formed the crew of the Halycon in the days when she was carrying tons of opium to the United States, went out to get the stuff. They never returned, but a short time afterward their boat was picked up on the beach, telling of their fate.

The opium finally got into the hands of the Hawaiian authorities who shipped it to Victoria to be sold for the benefit of the Government. R. P. Rithet & Co. acted as agents for the Hawaiian Government in the matter, and parties who originally dispatched the opium bought it for less than $1 a pound, the Victoria market being overstocked at the time on account of the falling off in the smuggling business.

Of the amount several hundred pounds was the best Hongkong opium. This Joselyn shipped to San Francisco, paying the regular United States duty on it, and even then realized more than enough to repay him for what he had paid the Hawaiian Government for the 2300 pounds. The domestic or San Francisco opium, which composed the balance of the lot, has no sale here, and, after the combination had had it on their hands several months, they chartered the Henrietta and once more dispatched it to Hawaiian shores.

Inasmuch as the agent at that end of the line this time is said to be a prominent customs official, their chances of disposing of what has been a "white elephant" on their hands is very good. The Henrietta took no Chinese from Victoria, but may have taken some from Vancouver. If so, they were probably landed on the Southern California coast, but it is no secret here now that the schooner is proceeding to Hawaii with opium.

BLUNDER OF A SOLDIER.

Luckily He Was Shot Instead of Being Chewed Up.

Among the appurtenances of the estate of Collis P. Huntington at Throggs Neck are a Siberian bloodhound, a shotgun and a coachman who is not afraid to shoot, says a New York dispatch of November 30. The dog is big and fierce-looking, and is credited with the laudable ambition of chewing up a burglar. The dog being chained up is all that saved Private Connolly's life, the servants all say now in telling of the early morning fight they had.

Private Connolly's first name is Anthony, and he is stationed at Fort Schuyler. In common with his comrades he was paid off Wednesday. Thursday morning found him at Throggs Neck hunting for the fort. In his search he blundered upon Mr. Huntington's house. He tried to enter the house and was fired upon by Coachman Black, the shot taking effect in the soldier's leg.

Connolly's superiors say, however, that the unfortunate private is liable to have no end of trouble, and the court-martial is liable to give him two years in the military prison when he recovers from his wound. Throughout the excitement and shooting no one thought to unchain the bloodhound, and now the servants in the Huntington household are saying how lucky this was for the poor soldier, for they are quite sure the dog would have eaten the unfortunate man up.

Adopted by the Newspaper.

Willie and Oscar Mannerstrom are the legal wards of the Grand Rapids Evening Press. The paper is a great friend of the poor boys of Grand Rapids, and has done a great deal to help them in different ways, but it has eclipsed even itself by the adoption of these boys, who last winter were homeless and friendless in Chicago. And what a success the venture has been!

The first thing to do was to find some way for the boys to earn a livelihood. Such little fellows they were, only 12 and 10 years old, that it was impracticable to think of their doing anything very hard. Some one suggested establishing a messenger service in connection with the Press, to be run by the boys. Next uniforms were bought for them, they were furnished with bicycles, given the use of the office telephone and lots of advertising in the paper, and the thing was done.

The kind-hearted people of Grand Rapids patronized them at first because they felt sorry for them, but now they do so because they know them, like them and trust them. Before long Willie, the oldest, found he could make enough money by himself to support both, so Oscar began going to school, and his teacher says he is a remarkably bright boy. Both boys are brim full of energy and ambition, and will, no doubt, when grown be successful men of whom the Press need never be ashamed.

THE RAINSTORM.

Seven Inches and a Half of Rain to Date.

The heavy rain which commenced at 11 p. m. on Wednesday showed no signs of letting up until about 7 o'clock this morning, since which time very little rain has fallen. Up to 9 o'clock last night 6.90 inches of rain had been registered by Curtis J. Lyons' gauge at Panchou. At 7 o'clock this morning the total was 7.50 inches. The gauge at Frank Brown's on King street shows about three inches less.

Mr. Lyons states that the present indications are perplexing, although it looks as though the storm had broken. Heavy showers may be expected during the afternoon and night. The barometer is high and is not affected by the storm, or, as Mr. Lyons expresses it, "it is not a barometer storm."

HAFFLED A LINGUIST.

Professor Young's Curious Experience With a Supposed Foreigner.

The late Professor Stephen J. Young of Bowdoin was an accomplished linguist. One day he was on a train bound from Bangor to Brunswick, when a conductor who knew him entered his car to ask him to come out to the second-class coach to try and find out where a certain stupid foreigner was going. The conductor had attacked him in all the foreign lingo he could muster, and could get no other response than a stupid stare.

Professor Young went back to the rear of the train. The passenger sat there looking very much disturbed and bewildered. The professor went at him in Canadian French, then in German, then in the languages of Scandinavia, Egypt, Italy, Spain and every other country on the face of this green earth. Still the passenger sat "mum as an owl" while the look of bewilderment deepened on his face.

The professor was nonplussed, and was about turning in defeat to his own car when the man looked wearily out of the window and remarked sadly to himself: "By gosh, I wish I was ter hum." He was an Aroostook Yankee, and he could speak nothing but English.—Eastern Argus.

N. S. Sachs calls attention to a fine line of holiday goods, both useful and ornamental.

Ah Won was fined $50 this morning by Judge Perry, having pleaded guilty of having opium in his possession contrary to law.

Jas. Nott, Jr., sells bath tubs for $10 of a style that used to cost $14, and guarantees satisfaction in every line of the plumbing business.

An old native woman and eight children ranging from twelve years old down were arrested this morning for fishing inside the forbidden line near the penitentiary. They were all ranged in a row on one seat in the prison yard and bawling their lot when the reporter saw them at noon.

If there was a little more of the Peerless Preserving Paint used on the roofs around town there would be no occasion to shift desks and furniture around during the rainy weather as was the case yesterday at the Custom House. Ables & Walton guarantee to make all the roofs they paint free from leakage. Their price is small in comparison to the guarantee given by them.

THE MONOWAI'S OFFICERS

ALL PROMOTED BY THE RESIGNATION OF McMECKAN.

The New Fourth Officer Had a Narrow Escape from Death in South America.

Several changes have been made among the officers of the Monowai, says a late San Francisco Chronicle, and with them go two stories, one romantic and the other dealing with adventure. J. McMeckan left the ship at Sydney, having fallen into a fortune of $75,000. It came from an unexpected source, a distant relative dying and leaving it to him. The sea has no more charms for him, with money enough to live in good style on shore. He bade good-by to his shipmates at Sydney and they were all happy at his good fortune. John Graham, F. McMillan and W. Foster, second, third and fourth officers respectively, were all promoted a point, and W. Ruxton, late of the bark J. H. Masters, was made fourth officer.

He is the man of adventure. He went to Brazil during the revolution, and one day at Santos some of the crew went ashore. He took a boat with two negroes to look them up. Telling the negroes to keep the boat off the wharf, he went ashore. He had not got far when a sentry challenged him, and, not being able to explain matters to the sentry, who did not know English, the latter fired, the bullet going through Mr. Ruxton's hat. Mr. Ruxton's expostulations only led to a second shot being fired, which missed him, but he thought it best to retreat. On getting to the end of the pier he found that the negroes had hurriedly pulled away from the wharf when the firing commenced, so he had to jump into the sea and swim out to the boat, which was beyond rifle shot. While in the water he was repeatedly fired at. On being got into the boat he was completely exhausted, and was taken back to the ship, where restoratives were used and he was brought round.

A Warehouse Flooded.

The heavy rains of yesterday and defective sewers are responsible for damaging goods in H. Hackfeld & Co's warehouse to the extent of about $1000 last night. Breaks in the sewer let the water into the cellar of the building where quantities of lime and cement were stored. No. 1 Engine company of the Fire Department was called on to pump out the cellar, which took about four hours' steady work.

News of the World by Way of the Colonies.

An inquiry is to be held into the grounding of French ironclads at Hyeres.

It is expected that the British Budget will show a surplus of six millions.

General Saussier, military Governor of Paris, is resigning his position, owing to disputes with M. Cavaignac.

Great Britain undertakes the construction of a railway of 260 miles from Mandalay to Kunlon, in order to prevent a French monopoly of Yunnan.

The Ashanti King, Prempeh, still maintains a defiant attitude. The princes are friendly disposed towards the British and have provided 10,000 carriers to assist the British forces in proceeding against the king.

THE WILD SWAN.

One of the Smallest War Vessels in the English Navy.

H. B. M. S. Wild Swan, which was coming into port when the BULLETIN went to press yesterday, is anchored in naval row. She left Esquimaux on November 21st at 9 a.m. and experienced bad weather nearly all the way. She is one of the smallest vessels in the British navy, carrying only eight guns. Her engines are of 800 horse power. She will remain here until after the holidays and will coal in the meantime. Unless orders arrive to the contrary she will then proceed to Callao and Valparaiso and take the place formerly occupied by the Hyacinth on that coast.

Following is a list of her officers: Commander Macvey Napier. Senior Lieutenant Wm. D. Church.

Lieutenants Sampson, Sladen, Digby, St. A. P. Weston, R. H. Heatcheck. Paymaster Chas. H. A. Ward. Surgeon A. B. Marriott. Engineer H. Garsford. Gunner F. J. Blewett.

"Hawaii Pono."

Teaching in the Future.

How shall mankind be taught in the future? The late Dr. Jowett once said to Mrs. Humphry Ward: "We shall come in the future to teach almost entirely by biography. We shall begin with the life that is most familiar to us, 'The life of Christ,' and we shall more and more put before our children the great examples of persons' lives, so that they shall have from the beginning heroes and friends in their thoughts." Mrs. Ward, in talking to young people about books and reading, is strenuous in dwelling upon the great advantage which people get out of a bit of stiff reading. She advises them to exercise their minds as hard as they possibly can on a bit of science or of history, and continue at it until they find that their minds grow and are strengthened in the process.—New York Commercial Gazette.

A Monument to the Martyrs.

Amid the ruins of the amphitheater of Carthage, the scene of the martyrdom of many early Christians, a chapel has been erected in accordance with the wishes of the late Cardinal Lavigerie.

A person of genius should marry a person of character. Genius does not herd with genius. The musk deer and the civet cat are never found in company.—Holmes.

Man is beyond dispute the most excellent of human beings, but the sage agree that a grateful dog is better than an ungrateful man.—Sadi.
